THE NEW INTERNATIONAL ENCYCLOPAEDIA

To All Grown-ups:

The Biography of a Boy

By JOSEPHINE DASKAM BACON

With Fifty Illustrations in Sienna by Rose O'Neill

HERE'S "Binks" again—that droll young person whose capers caused so much laughter in "The Memoirs of a Baby." He's a little bit older now and funnier—very much funnier—in this new story. The fun is for all grown-ups, married or not. Rose O'Neill has made fifty pictures for the book—reproduced in sienna—the kind you'll see framed before long in half the homes you visit.

Post 8vo. Cloth. $1.50

The "Thin-paper" Hardy

The reception given to "Tess," the first volume issued in this new uniform edition of the novels of Thomas Hardy, was so cordial that other titles have been added to meet the demand. All the Hardy novels will soon be available in this handy, unabridged edition.

Volumes Ready this Spring:

TESS OF THE D'URBERVILLES
JUDE THE OBSCURE
THE RETURN OF THE NATIVE
UNDER THE GREENWOOD TREE

Degroot, J. J. M. The religion of the Chinese. N. Y., Macmillan, 1910. c. 7+230 p. D. cl., $1.25 net.

Author is professor of ethnography in the University of Leyden, Holland. For a proper understanding of the religions of East Asia it is necessary to first understand the religions of China—for China's as a world religion, has permeated Korea, Japan, Manchuria and Turkestan. The primeval religion of China is discussed, its beginnings lost to all present research and question. Of this native religion Buddhism subtracted nothing; and the religion of the Crescent and the Cross has but crossed the threshold of China's consciousness. Index.

Flower, B: Orange. Christian science as a religious belief and a therapeutic agent. Bost., Twentieth Century Co., 3 Park Sq., 1909, [1910.] c. 20+158 p. 12°, cl., $1.

Mr. Flower is not a member of the Christian Science church, but in the interest of fair play he made an investigation of Mrs. Eddy's teachings and many of the cures claimed by the cult. The result is that while not accepting or agreeing with all of their philosophy, he still believes that they have much truth and numerous cures to their credit.

Gelston, Willis L. Organizations for boys. Phil., Presbyterian Board of Publication, 1909, [1910.] c. 53 p. S. pap., 10 c.

Author is superintendent of young people's work in the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A. Book gives the plan and scope of a number of organizations connected with church work which are useful in enlisting boys in the work and keeping them interested.

Gillmore, Mrs. Inez Haynes. Maida's little shop; front. by Gertrude Huebsch. N. Y., B. W. Huebsch, 1910. c. '09. 294 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Maida was the little lame daughter of a very rich man who could give her everything but health and an interest in life. At last a great friend of theirs discovered that she would like to keep a shop, and the book tells how she grew happy and strong like other children while she tended her little store.

The author is instructor of modern languages in United States Military Academy. The book was written with the object of giving a complete conjugation of all French verbs, and to illustrate their idiomatic use, the idea being that a student learning to conjugate a verb learns also how to use it.

Martyn, Wyndham. The man outside; il. by C. M. Relyea. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., 1910. c. 312 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

Having found that the girl to whom he is engaged is in love with another man, and has been forced into the engagement by her mother, Lord Mountcastle decides that he will step outside his class for a while and be accepted for himself, not for his title and fortune. He meets an American girl and they fall in love with each other, but just as they become engaged the girl mysteriously disappears. In finding his ladylove Mountcastle has to deal with an unscrupulous Wall Street man, and himself commits what is practically piracy on the high seas. It is an entertaining tale, with an engaging hero and heroine.

The author uses sociology as the interpretive key to the Bible; and the Bible affords him many sources of sociological material. This book covers briefly the lectures on Biblical sociology given the students in the University during the last four years. Index.

The author is assistant editor of the British Weekly, and has published many interesting books, among them the well-known "Life of the Empress Eugénie." She contends that socialism has its great thinkers and students; men earnest, candid anl thoughtful. Because she deplores the inevitable exaggeration of the socialistic movement, she has made this effort to make others understand what this party asks for, and why they ask it, by presenting their views and arguments as set forth in their best and most conservative form in the chief books published on the Continent and in England. Author is Pusey librarian, and formerly principal of Dorchester Missionary College. This edition has been enlarged from a contribution of the author's to the Church Quarterly Review, as to the controversy in the Church of England regarding the practice of requesting departed saints for the help of their prayers to God. Citing many historical instances from the growth of the custom the conclusion of the author is, that "the rejection of what the Church has not rejected no less impairs the freedom of the Christian heritage than to require the affirmation of what the Church has not affirmed." Other books by the author are "Holy baptism," "Christ and human life," "Law of Christian marriage," etc.

In this volume he refers to those who have written larger and more systematic works than his own pretends to be, which, he says, is merely for the purpose of introducing the lay-reader into these more learned realms, where specialties have been made of points passed over with little comment by himself. This is the last work and the only novel from the pen of one of Russia's famous Nihilists. During his twenty-two months' imprisonment in a St. Petersburg dungeon, before his exile to Siberia, the author wrote this book. Although old and shattered and many petitions have been sent Alexander III. for his release, he is still kept in Siberia, where the present Czar's father sent him. This work is considered by his party the most faithful portraiture of their movement. It is the first translation to come to the New World. It is the story of the life and development of a young girl born in ignoble circumstances. She, by her own choice and an insistence on the freedom of her personality in expressing itself, lives a simple, happy life stripped of the luxuries her mother had deemed necessary.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE BOOKS OF 1909.

THE year 1909 added 10,901 titles to the records of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY. Luckily a great part of these titles, which must be put on record for statistical purposes, do not come at all within the range of general reading, and we pretend to guide our constituency in our yearly summary only to the accessions the year brought to general reading. This at once eliminates from the appalling number of publications to be spoken of professional works on law and medicine, school books, government publications, and all works of applied science treated in technical books. Still the residue remains very voluminous and very full of problems and difficulties to the judgment that must face them. The personal equation naturally cannot fail to enter into the selection we earnestly try to make broad and fair.

THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY bravely faces the problems and difficulties of classification, annotation, separation by countries of authors, the setting apart of the books which have proved great popular successes, fostered by the cleverest of advertising, or criticism which must be eulogy—and finds itself as helpless as ever before the leading questions: Which were needed? Which will live?

It is truly encouraging to know that so practiced a critic as Augustine Birrell, when asked to do this work of guidance this year among the 10,000 English publications, confessed himself not equal to the task.

Happily the American and English records do not represent 20,901 books. A great part of the titles are duplicated, every important book almost of general literature appearing in the lists of both countries.

It is good to note that though writers and manufacturers had so overstocked the reading market, general prosperity, expert distributing and publicity, which has become a profession, brought a great part of our 10,901 books to the public, and bookselling was profitable in 1909.

The year was interesting, and the people wanted information on the subjects brought before them. In it were celebrated the third centenary of Shakespeare, the second centenary of Dr. Johnson, and the centenaries of Darwin, Gladstone, Tennyson, Edgar Allan Poe, Oliver Wendell Holmes and Abraham Lincoln.

The North Pole was discovered and an explorer reached within 111 miles of the South Pole. Mrs. Eddy and Christian Science called forth several books, and the discussion of woman's right to vote also produced many books and pamphlets.

Great attention was given to the curing of tuberculosis, and of nervous and other diseases by mental and spiritual agencies, and the sumptuous Hudson-Fulton celebration, chiefly in New York State, brought its quota of books and called much attention to Dutch history, literature and art. Municipal reform, state rights and the new House of Governors awoke the citizens and made them read and think; and aerial navigation, wireless telegraphy, automobiles and race questions—Indians and negroes especially—were freely written about.

Their death called special critical attention to Swinburne, Meredith, F. Marion Crawford, George Manville Fenn, Cesare Lombroso, Russell Sturgis, Edward Everett Hale, George Cabot Lodge, Simon Newcomb, Henry Harland, Sara Orne Jewett, Martha Finley and Rosa Nouchette Cary.

Original plays, plays transformed into novels and novels transformed into plays, were distinctive of the year, as were the tastefully manufactured books on outdoor life, birds, trees, flowers, etc., many of them of lasting scientific value. Novels for the first time fell to second place in quantity, being outnumbered by the Literature and Collected works, largely accounted for by the publications due to the centennials and the important recent deaths, which led to reprints in many editions of these authors' books. Dainty little series of classics and standards appeared in the lists of many publishers.

Ex-President Eliot, of Harvard, brought down upon himself a great deal of criticism by stating that all the books a man needed for wide culture could be held by a "Five Foot Book Case." All these came under the heading of Literature and Collected Works. They are not new books, and therefore not specially mentioned in the summaries under subject.

The summary will now endeavor to get a little nearer, serving as guide to some of the leading books of the year, as well as to a few books that without this reminder might be overlooked. The popular successes are given elsewhere.

FICTION.

Perhaps the most finished business novel of the year was Robert Grant's "The Chippendales." The learned judge who wrote "Unleavened Bread" makes a fine study of the conflict of the new and the old in the society and the business methods of Boston, a modern, hustling business conscience being contrasted with the noblesse oblige of Chippendale traditions. William White Allen lays the scene of "A Certain Rich Man" in the great Middle West, and pictures the absorbing career of a remarkable money-lender and how all bent before his strong personality; and Robert W. Chambers in "The Danger Mark" deals with the inheritance of character and of vast fortune. The latter also gave us "The Special Messenger," a story of the fiercest turmoil of the war between the states. F. Marion Crawford left us two stories—"The White Sister," dealing with the law of the new Italian government that only a civil ceremony makes a marriage legal, and "Stradella," an Italian story of art and music in the seventeenth century. Henry Harland left "The Royal End," a story of clever contrast between Italian and New England life, so nearly done that his wife could finish it. Books of merit of style and interest of subject were Mrs. Amelia E. Barr's "The House on Cherry Street," a story of piracy in Colonial New York under George III.; Alice Brown's "The Story of Thyrza," which led to much discussion, as the tragedy of Thyrza's motherhood was misunderstood, and the story judged with those of questionable morals which have been so numerous for a few years; Ellen Glasgow's "The Romance of a Plain Man," and Emerson Hough's "54-40 or Fight," a story of the Louisiana Purchase and Oregon, which lay in 54 degrees and 40 minutes north latitude.

Baroness Bettina von Hutten in "Beechy" wrote a story of an Italian opera singer and embodied a remarkable description of the opera of "Carmen." Frances Little in "Little Sister Snow" offered a pretty Japanese companion piece for her much appreciated "Lady of the Decoration;" Jack London's improving powers showed in "Martin Edin," a young sailor with aspirations to become a writer; Harold McGrath once again tells a tale of breathless adventure in mystical kingdoms in "The Goose Girl;" Thomas Nelson Page has fine material expertly handled in "John Marvel, Assistant;" Mrs. Caldwell Hegan Rice does some of her best work in "Mr. Opp," who becomes proprietor of a typical village newspaper and teaches some needed truths; Harold Bell Wright, whose "Shepherd of the Hills" has met such favor, wrote another story of "a real minister" who works in the Middle West and fights Christian Science in a singer in his choir; and Mrs. Wiggin describes life in a Shaker community in "Susanna and Sue," a fine story of original incompatibility between the natures of man and wife, sensibly lived down.

Deserving special mention for delicacy of imagination and beauty of treatment, and likely to be overlooked when novels pour in at the rate of three per day, were James Allen's "The Bride of the Mistletoe;" "Dreaming River," by Barr Moses, which has only two characters—a marvellous piece of psychology; and a dainty bit of work called "The Runaway Place," a little idyl of Central Park, New York, its natural beauties and the great art treasures of its museum.

Literary merit brings Maurice H. Hewlett's "Open Country: a Comedy with a Sting" to the leading place in English fiction, but it totally lacks dramatic action. Senhouse, the hero of "Halfway House," thinks aloud in letters to a girl and philosophizes on socialism, religion and marriage. Hewlett also in "The Ruinous Face" tells the story of "Helen of Troy" in his matchless style. Eastern life is the background of Hall Caine's "The White Prophet," which incidentally criticises England's colonial rule; of Mrs. Flora A. W. Steel's "A Prince of Dreamers," who was a contemporary of Queen Elizabeth; and of Robert S. Hichens's "Bella Donna," which has a most unpleasant, materialistic heroine, but is undoubtedly well written. Mrs. Humphry Ward said some hard things about American marriage and divorce in "Marriage à la Mode," a work not up to her standard. The deceased wife's sister marriage act inspired "It Never Can Happen Again," which is proving another success for W. F. De Morgan; and W. J. Locke, in "Septimus," introduced a dreamy inventor and added an original hero to fiction.

English life is pictured in "Great Possessions," by Mrs. Wilfrid Philip Ward, and has been called an English "House of Mirth;" in Eva Lathbury's "The Long Gallery" one is among cultivated people—a treat in present fiction; Frank Danby's "Sebastian" gives a vivid, realistic view of modern London life; "A False Position," by Mrs. L. Baillie Reynolds treats of the consequences of a duke marrying the governess; and J. Collis Snaith, author of "Broke of Covenden," writes in "Araminta" an amusing novel of fashionable London to-day. Of religious tendency are D. Raeburn's "Hoodman Grey, Christian," story of Judas Iscariot; Gilbert Keith Chesterton's "The Ball and the Cross;" Ernest Old meadow's "Antonio;" and Ralph Connor's "The Foreigner," a story of international interest, with scene in the Canadian Northwest.

Of the time of Napoleon I. is "The Infamous John Friend," by Mrs. Richard S. Garnett; Eden Phillpotts, Rudyard Kipling and Herbert G. Wells each had two volumes. Phillpott's "Three Brothers" are three well-to-do farmers of Devonshire, and the author is at his best, and almost surpasses himself in "The Haven," a story of fishermen of three generations. Kipling's "Actions and Reactions" is the first collection of tales since he received the Nobel prize; and "Abaft the Funnel" brings together some earlier stories. Wells's "Ann Veronica" deals with modern woman and has met with severe criticism; and his "Tono-Bungay," (a patent medicine,) caricatures modern methods of advertising, financiering and "promoting."

From the French came one of René Bazin's masterpieces. "This My Son" (Les Noellets) giving an artistic picture of the Breton peasant and farm life.

From the German we received Hermann Sudermann's "The Song of Songs" (Das Hohe Lied), in which the great dramatist tells the story of an unprotected German girl in scenes realistic to a fault and gives his usual sad picture of the world; and in healthy contrast "Banzai!" (the Japanese war cry), describing the invasion of the United States by the Japanese, and offering pure fiction without any love episode whatever. The book has sold nearly 300,000 copies in Germany.

From the Dutch came an author new to us, I. Querido, who in "The Toil of Man" (Menschneuer) sends a great cry from the downtrodden workers of the ground which recalls Zola and Balzac at their saddest. The novel is one of a trilogy which made his fame.

From Spain came a fearless picture of how the monarchy and the Church are shaking before an awakening people, painted by Ibanez Vincent Blasco in "The Shadow of the Cathedral."

BIOGRAPHY, MEMOIRS, CORRESPONDENCE.

Among American biographies John Bigelow's "Retrospections of an Active Life," in three large volumes, is the one of most far-reaching and many-sided interest, and it is good to realize that this aged patriot, who served his country with such marked ability in her darkest days, is still among us, hale and hearty at ninety-two. John Watson Foster, who has prepared for us two volumes of "Diplomatic Memoirs," has been Minister to Mexico, Russia and Spain, legal adviser to the Chinese government in the late peace negotiations with Japan, served on commission to settle the Alaskan boundary, and has much to tell. George F. Parker's "Recollections of Grover Cleveland" was heartily approved by the great statesman three times nominated for the presidency, and covers his life from early boyhood to the last happy days at Princeton. The centennial of Lincoln brought upwards of seventy books and pamphlets, of which the most original and distinctive was "The Lincoln Tribute Book," edited by Horatio Sheafe Krans, appreciations by statesmen, poets and men of letters at home and abroad, and furnished with a full-face Lincoln medal from the design of Jules Edouard Roiné. George Haven Putnam gave us "Abraham Lincoln, the People's Leader in the Struggle for National Existence," a labor of love most skilfully carried out; and our sadly mourned Richard Watson Gilder gave us "Lincoln the Leader and Lincoln's Genius for Expression." James Henry Lee and J. R. Hutchinson have traced "The Ancestry of Lincoln" by a find in the records of the English Chancery Court 400 years further back than hitherto known. Biography is further enriched by two volumes of hitherto unpublished "Journals of Ralph Waldo Emerson," by the second volume of "Letters and Journals of Samuel Gridley Howe;" by two volumes of "Recollections of Seventy Years," by Franklin Benjamin Sanborn, and by the "Autobiography of Nathaniel Southgate Shaler," late Professor of Geology in Harvard University.

By the writer's being born in Wales, though developed under American patronage, "The Autobiography of Sir Henry Morton Stanley" must be yielded most grudgingly to English biography, and it takes first place as one of the most important biographies of many years, and contains a very valuable folding map of Africa. A work in two volumes of lasting historic and art value has been made of Boswell's classic, "Life of Samnel Johnson," with 640 illustrations carefully selected by Roger Ingpen from authentic pictures, giving the book special value as a collection of eighteenth century portraits. Two volume biographies, with many illustrations, appeared of Pope, Shelley and Sheridan, which must be looked up in our lists; and also in two volumes each came the journals of Lord Broughton and Horace Walpole. Biographies of artists and musicians were a distinct feature of the year. Mrs. Clement Parsons has written a fine essay on acting in her book on "The Incomparable Mrs. Siddons;" and J. A. Hammerton has done justice to "George Meredith in Anecdote and Criticism."

Eugen Kuchnemann, of the University of Breslau, for two years exchange professor at Harvard, has written "Charles W. Eliot, President of Harvard University," with the thoroughness of a German scholar, and his book is a suggestive educational work of rare value.

Yung Wing educated at Yale University, now associate Chinese Minister in Washington, has written a frank autobiography which shows his able work for the Chinese Educational Movement.

A unique little compilation entitled "The Marvellous Year" was gotten up for a memorial of the year, which marks the centenary, bicentenary and tercentenary of fourteen of the world's great men. Gertrude Huebsch, daughter of the New York publisher, has made the portrait drawings, which show great promise.

HISTORY.

The Hudson-Fulton celebration turned eyes on New York City and State. Just at the right moment American history received from Mrs. Schuyler Van Rensselaer her "History of the City of New York in the Seventeenth Century," with fine maps, exhaustive index and bibliographies (550 works), and all must rejoice that this is only the preliminary unit in Mrs. Van Rensselaer's large plan for writing the entire history of the city. Dr. William Elliot Griffis wrote "The Story of New Netherland: the Dutch in America," and he knows his material; "Narratives of New Netherland, 1609-1664," were the important addition to Original Narratives of Early American History, edited by John Franklin Jameson, and it has three fine maps; and Esther Singleton gave us in "Dutch New York" a fine piece of the kind of work which has made her reputation. A work that will stand out and live for its great scope and its profound erudition is Albert Bernhardt-Faust's "The German Element in the United States," in two volumes. The author is professor of German at Cornell, and he has written an exhaustive account of the influence of people of German birth in the political, social and educational upbuilding of this country, and furnished it with a bibliography of 84 pages to verify his statements. Full of facts is John Davis's "Travels of Four Years and a half in the United States, Covering from 1799 to 1802;" "The Statesmanship of Andrew Jackson as Told in His Writings and Speeches" is carefully edited by Frances Newton Thorpe, and the bibliography of 30 pages alone makes a valuable book of McElroy's "Kentucky in the Nation's History," and it also has valuable historical portraits. "Our Plymouth Forefathers the Real Founders of Our Republic," by Charles Stedman Hanks, makes very clear the subtleties of creed that led to the forming of New England. Clara Crawford Perkins has made a fine book of "The Builders of Spain;" and Admiral F. E. Chadwick, another in "The Relations of the United States and Spain."

Nothing stands out prominently in English history. "The Girlhood of Queen Elizabeth" is told in letters edited by Frank Arthur Mumby; and "The Last Days of Charles II.," by Raymond Crawford, is vouched for by the scholarly imprint of the Oxford Press. Winnifred Cockshott's "The Pilgrim Fathers" shows their strong influence on the people of Holland. A remarkable feature of the year was the astonishing number of works on French royalties and historical persons, especially of memoirs of noted women. Many of these books went with rather more detail than necessary into some appalling conditions of French morals of their time.

General Alexei Kuropatkin's "The Russian Army and the Japanese War," in two volumes, is of interest to the civilized world. The book was suppressed by the Russian government. A translation of Prince Kropotkin's "The Great French Revolution, 1789-1793," treats especially of the economic problems of the Revolution.

DESCRIPTION AND TRAVEL.

This department of literature offers so many books of such superior quality that it is one of the most difficult to report upon. A beautiful and distinctive book was made of John Charles Van Dyke's and Mrs. Van Rensselaer's "The New New York: a Commentary on the Place and People," with 124 illustrations by Joseph Pennell, showing how this city is now being rebuilt on a scale so colossal that few of its citizens or visitors have grasped its significance. As a work of art and information George Wharton Edwards's "Holland of To-day" is equally valuable, and seldom text and picturing can be done equally well by one hand. Three new books were added to the exquisite American Waterways series: Curwood's "The Great Lakes;" Lyman's "The Columbia River," and Quick's "American Inland Waterways." These beautiful books combine history, art and engineering, and are a unique enterprise. Our battleships went around the world, and what they saw is told in Roman J. Miller's "Round the World With the Battleships" and his "Pictorial Log of the Battle Fleet Cruise;" and in Franklin Matthews's "Back to Hampton Roads." There were many books on Africa. Full of facts are Frederick Seymour's "Roosevelt in Africa," with complete study of wild animals of the world; Dr. Rainsford's "The Land of the Lion, with vocabulary of African words; and MacQueen's "In Wildest Africa," a very comprehensive book. South America is being much travelled and described. "The Andean Land" (South America), a fine work in two volumes by Chase Salmon Osborn, is the only one we can specially mention.

An Englishman and a Swede have written the great books of travel of the year. Sir Ernest H. Shackleton in his "Heart of the Antarctic" wrote the story of the "British Antarctic Expedition, 1907-1909," and included Professor David's account of the first journey to the south magnetic pole, and proved that a point within a radius of 111 miles of the pole has been reached. It is a mine of knowledge, and the scientists of Europe have approved it. "Trans-Himalaya: Discoveries and Adventures in Tibet," in two volumes, tells of Sven Anders Hedin's adventures and hardships in working his way into the forbidden land, opposed by relentless nature and almost more relentless tradition. Channing Arnold and Frederick J. Tabor have written a record of travel in Yucatan and have called it "The American Egypt." It is a book of great merit. Nevin Otto Winter's "Guatemala" is also full of needed information. Seventeen books deal with Panama. Description and politics interest equally in their contents, and nationality of authors is uncertain. There are a dozen books on Turkey and seven on China, which naturally are political as well as descriptive. A fine atlas of China, made by Edward Stanford, is valuable. A most original and interesting book is "Haremlik," in which Mrs. Demetra Vaka Brown tells of the life of the women in the harems of her native city of Constantinople. The English travellers seem to largely favor the East; all their books are good. Consult the list carefully under the various countries of the East in which you are interested. Africa comes in for a special share of attention. The reputation of their authors attracts readers to "My African Journey," by Winston Spencer Churchill; Lady Augusta Wilson's "South African Memories," and to J. K. Karl Weule's "Native Life in East Africa," giving the results of a German scientist's ethnological research.

POLITICAL AND SOCIAL SCIENCE.

Transportation by land and water and the army and navy are classified under this heading. Robert W. Neeser's fine book, in two volumes, "Statistical and Chronological History of the United States Navy, 1775 to 1907," is one of the great productions of the year. The vital question of railroad transportation was well handled in Cleveland and Powell's "Railroad Promotion and Capitalization in the United States" (52-page bibliography); J. O. Fagan's "Labor and the Railroads;" E. R. Johnson's "Elements of Transportation," a discussion of steam railroad, electric railway and ocean and inland water transportation; McPherson's "Railroad Freight Rates," and Quick's "Inland Waterways." After long debates a new code of tariff was finally arrived at, and the books and pamphlets on the questions involved were a flood. Municipal government was taught the people in many books, notably in Horace E. Deming's "The Government of American Cities; F. Albert Cleveland's "Chapters on Municipal Administration and Accounting;" Frank J. Goodnow's "Municipal Government." The scholarly lectures of Ambassador James Bryce delivered at Yale were entitled "Hindrances to Good Citizenship;" Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes (Methodist) wrote "The Teaching of Citizenship;" C. Sumner Lobingier's "The People's Law, or, Popular Participation in Lawmaking," has a very valuable bibliography (15 p); and "Modern Constitutions" is a compilation of the laws of twenty two of the most important countries of the world. The issues of immigration are vital, and are specially well treated in Rev. E. A. Steiner's "The Immigrant Tide," after a tour through Europe to study the causes of emigration; Cowan and Dunlap's "Bibliography of the Chinese Question," twenty-six books on the Indian and fifteen on the negro treated imminent race questions. Booker T. Washington's two-volume "Story of the Negro" covers the entire history of the negro. Equal suffrage and woman in industrial relations brought many books, some of telling arguments. Cicely Hamilton wrote a notable book on "Marriage as a Trade," in which she rather misjudges men. In "The Spirit of Youth and Our City Streets" Jane Addams argues for municipal channels of amusement; and Frank Parsons writes on Choosing a Vocation," and describes his Boston "Vocation Bureau." William I. Thomas's "Source Book for Social Origins" is a masterly compilation by the associate professor of sociology in the University of Chicago. Supplementary bibliographies (42 p) and books on Panama also find their place in this section.

RELIGION AND PHILOSOPHY.

Some very scholarly men have put very scholarly work into speculation on these themes. Hugo Münsterberg, of Harvard, by his "Eternal Values" helps thinkers understand life in this world; and in his "Psychotherapy" does not fight Christian Science nor the Emanuel Church Movement, but treats them as transitions towards scientific medicine. Rudolf Christof Eucken, of the University of Jena, winner of the Nobel prize for literature in 1908, treats of "The Problem of Human Life as Viewed by Great Thinkers from Plato to the Present Time." William James, of Harvard, has written a sequel to his "Pragmatism;" and James Bissett, of Williams College, explains "What is Pragmatism?" Rev. Marion Le Roy Burton, president-elect of Smith College, treats "The Problem of Evil," a criticism of the Augustinian point of view. Ex-President Eliot aroused much discussion by his "Religion of the Future;" and ex-President W. F. Warren, of Boston University, produced a learned work on "The Earliest Cosmologies," the universe as pictured in thought by the ancients, a study of ancient literatures and religions. Mental healing in its various phases is still earnestly studied. As psychotherapy, the Emanuel Movement, suggestion, etc., it has had additions of twenty-five books from such authors as Professor Dubois, of the University of Berne; Dr. Boris Sidis, Dr. Richard Clarke Cabot, professor in Harvard Medical School, and such exponents of the Emanuel Movement as Rev. Lyman Pierson Powell, Ray Stannard Baker, Dr. Samuel McComb, Dr. Elwood Worcester and others.

"The Life of Mary Baker Eddy," by Georgine Milmine, which had appeared as a serial in McClure's Magazine, was published, and there were upwards of twenty contributions to the subject of Christian Science, both for and against, as well as two or three novels that worked this faith into their plots. Immortality was more studied than it has been in many previous years. Twenty-four writers gave it their thought. Lombroso, the celebrated alienist, gave it his trained powers of investigation in "After Death—What?" spiritistic phenomena and their interpretation, a book that came into especial notice because its world-renowned author died on the day it was published in this country. Arthur Fremont Rider gathered the statements of the personal beliefs of Sir Oliver Lodge, Tolstoy, Lombroso, Andrew Lang, Professor William James, of Harvard, and others, and endeavored to sift truth from error in a clear, interesting way. Sir Oliver Lodge's "Survival of Man" and Goldsmith L. Dickinson's "Is Immortality Desirable?" were much discussed.

LITERATURE AND ART.

Nothing stood out very notably in pure literature. Henry Cabot Lodge and Francis W. Halsey edited "The Best of the World's Classics," in twenty volumes. There were twenty books on Shakespeare, Canon Henry C. Beeching and Grandville G. Greenwood coming to pretty strong words upon their subject. "Some Acrostic Signatures of Francis Bacon," by William Stone Booth, again stirred the Bacon-Shakespeare controversy, to which Charles Alexander Montgomery also argues very cleverly by anagrams that Bacon wrote Shakespeare's plays in "Discoveries Which Prove Authoritatively Ye Secret Parentage of Shakespeare." Three books dealt with Shakespeare the man and his biographical history. Meredith's "Last Poems;" William Watson's "New Poems," containing "The Woman With the Serpent's Tongue," provoked discussion. There were some excellent plays, among them Maeterlinck's "Blue-Bird" and the text of "The Passion Play of Oberammergau," which will again be played this year.

Art and architecture had many books of high quality. Arthur Kingsley Porter's "Mediæval Arrchitecture," with their bibliographies of 2500 titles, showed the first two volumes of his stupendous work; and Mr. and Mrs. Pennell's "French Cathedrals" was a work of architecture as well as art. Books descriptive of many galleries of the world, with fine pictures, were a feature of the year, as were little books on many artists and musicians.

AMERICAN BOOK PRODUCTION IN 1909.

1909, judged by the number of titles recorded in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, has been the banner year for book production. The financial crisis of 1907 occurring, as it did, so near the close of the year, had a marked effect on the output of books in 1908. Caution and money stringency combined to make the publishers fearful of issuing many books, and the result was a decrease of production as compared with the previous twelve months, which until 1909 had been the most active recorded. We have in our "Weekly Record of New Publications" during the past year recorded 10,901 titles, of which 10,193 were new books and 708 new editions, as against 9254 in 1908, of which 8745 were new books and 509 new editions, the gain for 1909 being 1647 titles. Of the whole number 10,901 books recorded, only 4224 were received at this office. The remainder of 6677 represent new editions, publications imported only in very limited numbers and not sent for review, titles reported by publishers, titles taken from the accession cards received from the Library of Congress, and titles gathered from every available source by the constant watchfulness of our staff.

Table No. 1 will show an interesting comparison between the two years. The rather extraordinary decrease in the works of fiction may or may not indicate an awakened interest in books of a more serious nature. It would seem more probable that, owing to the circumstance that 1909 has seen the centenary celebrations of so many famous men that works by them have appeared in many editions, while books about them have also come forth in great numbers. This, no doubt, will account for the fact that the class literature and collected works has gone from fifth to first place with 1136 to its credit, 512 more than last year, while fiction takes second place with but 1088 novels, 401 less than in 1908. Religion and theology has fallen from second to third place with 903 books, as against 816 of 1908. Among the other classes each shows an increase in this year's record; juvenile works has gained 253, useful arts 226, description, geography and travel 59, biography 35, political and social science 79, education 226, while fine arts and illustrated gift books shows but 28 as its increase.

Table No. 2 is an attempt to show the number of books manufactured in the United States in 1909—first, those by American authors; second, those by English, or foreign authors, made in this country according to the demands of the copyright law, which two classes, added to those books in English, imported bound, or in sheets, comprise the year's output. The first and second divisions are made up very largely of copyright books. We do not claim absolute accuracy for either of our tables, but think that they are of interest as showing approximately the character and numerical importance of American book production. The table shows 8308 by American authors against 6349 of 1908; 828 by English or foreign authors (made here) against 1145 of 1908, and 1765 books or sheets imported, against 1765 of 1908. Again the imported books largely outnumber the reprints of works by foreign authors, a phenomenon observable for a number of years past. Unlike the previous year, 1909 shows the most reprints in the class literature and collected works instead of in fiction. This also may be traced to the centenaries.

WORK OF THE COPYRIGHT OFFICE DURING 1909.

FOLLOWING is an extract from the report of Thorvald Solberg, Register of Copyrights, of the copyright business transacted for the calendar year 1909:

COPYRIGHT OFFICE MAIL MATTER.

The greater part of the business of the Copyright Office is done by correspondence. The fees, titles, deposits and applications received come for the most part through the mails. The volume of the business is indicated by the following statistics:

A. MAIL MATTER RECEIVED.

Letters containing remittances:
Money orders received to the number of.	29,228
Express orders were received to the number of	2,672
Drafts were received to the number of	320
Checks were received to the number of	7,173
Letters containing currency and coin	6,258
Letters of inquiry, etc., received	16,452
Letters requesting blanks and printed matter received	29,048
Applications received not accompanied by fee.	673
Informal applications received	5,823
Letters received forwarded to the Librarian.	5,016
Parcels received containing copyright deposits.	44,479
Replies received relating to unfinished business	6,208
Mail matter returned unclaimed	915
Total letters, etc., received	154,265

B. MAIL MATTER DISPATCHED.

Dictated letters mailed	19,377
Circular letters mailed	14,660
Post-card receipts mailed	45,651
Post-card notifications mailed	18,855
Parcels of application blanks mailed	37,398
Parcels of certificates mailed	34,554
Receipts for deposits mailed	3,823
Weekly parts of the Catalogue of Copyright mailed	14,668
Miscellaneous packages mailed	624
Total letters, etc., dispatched	189,610
Of the above letters and parcels there were registered	65
These figures show an increase over the year 1908, in the number of pieces of mail matter received, of	28,060
Increase in pieces dispatched	25,935
During the eleven and one-half years from July 1, 1897, to December 31, 1909, separate money orders were received and applied as fees to the number of	275,378
In addition there were returned to the senders, not being available as fees	22,724
Total money orders which were dealt with	298,102

BOOK PRODUCTION IN ENGLAND IN 1909.

The Publishers' Circular, of London, reports the most active year ever recorded in the English publishing field. In 1908 there was a small decrease of 93 books as compared with 1907, but in spite of this the increase in the annual output since the commencement of 1906 is 2473. For 1909 the statistics show 10,725 books recorded, 904 more than last year. In England the number of new editions has decreased, the percentage being 21.2 as against 23.5 in 1908—on the whole a gratifying change, indicating that there have been fewer cheap reprints than before. Taking the year's output class by class, there are the following increases: Religion, 100; fiction, 94; political and social, 81; arts and sciences, 37; voyages and travels, 20; history and biography, 53; year books and serials, 76; medical science, 37; belles-lettres, 47; miscellaneous, 478; while there are decreases in the following classes: Educational, 8; law, 17; poetry and drama, 94. The spring publishing business was unusually prolific and prolonged.

The analytical table, as divided into classes, makes the following showing:

BOOK PRODUCTION IN LEADING COUNTRIES.

It is difficult to make any adequate calculation of the world's output of books in any given year, especially in view of the lateness of date at which these are given in continental countries. The figures for the United States and for Great Britain are given respectively in The Publishers' Weekly and in The Publishers' Circular, of London, promptly within January, but other countries lag behind three or six months in their report. It is, therefore, necessary to estimate approximately the probable output for the year closed from the increase or decrease in previous years. Such figures actually for the United States and Great Britain, estimated for the other countries for the year 1909, but as recorded for the preceding years 1908 and 1907, are given in the following table:

	1907	1908	1909
United States	9,620	9,254	10,901
Great Britain	9,914	9,821	10,725
Germany	30,073	30,317	12,000	est.
France	10,785	11,072	11,200	est.
Italy	7,040	6,918	7,000	est.

The figures for the United States are of books recorded during 1909 by The Publishers' Weekly and for Great Britain of books recorded during 1909 by The Publishers' Circular, both showing a gain from previous years. These are practically books proper, though some pamphlets are included. They do not correspond to the copyright figures of either country, as the American figures include uncopyrighted reprints and in England not all copyrighted books are registered during the year of production. The French figures are of books recorded in the Bibliographie de la France, which for 1908 exceeded the copyright figures by 2268. The official German figures are not comparable with the others, as they include all sorts of printed material as well as books proper, and the estimate for 1909 is probably a fair statement of books proper for comparison.

Once Mentioned.

The Testing of Diana Mallory, Out-of-Doors in the Holy Land, The Bronze Bell, The Chippendales, The Story of Thyrza, The Romance of a Plain Man, The Calling of Dan Matthews, Bella Donna.

Twenty-nine books were represented in the lists for 1909 as against thirty-six titles in 1908, thirty in 1907, thirty in 1906, twenty-nine in 1905, thirty-one in 1904, thirty-two in 1903, twenty-eight in 1902, twenty-nine in 1901, and twenty-nine in 1900. In the ten years that we have been printing this annual summing up three hundred and three different books have been represented. In the lists for 1909 there appears no book that is the result of collaboration. One book, "The Inner Shrine," was published anonymously. Of the other twenty-eight, twenty-one books were written by men and seven by women. Last year the division was much more even, when of the thirty-eight authors represented twenty-two were men and sixteen women. Of the twenty-eight books of 1909—"The Inner Shrine" again excluded—only four are of foreign authorship, these four representing the work of Mrs. Humphry Ward, W. J. Locke, Phillips Oppenheim and Robert Hichens.

THE WORLD'S MOST POPULAR BOOKS.

"THE most widely circulated book in the whole world," says the London Globe, "is a Chinese almanac, printed in Pekin at the Imperial Press. The edition consists of 8,000,000 copies, which are sent into the provinces, and so great is the interest taken by the Chinese in the publication, so high the confidence reposed in the information contained, that of the 8,000,000 copies not one comes back to the printers. Nothing approaching these figures is attained by any publication in the Western world.

"The work which attains the widest circulation in Europe and America is the Bible, and the next to the Bible in popularity comes 'Don Quixote,' and then 'Uncle Tom's Cabin.' This is difficult of acceptation to-day, although fifty years ago the claim of 'Uncle Tom' would not have been questioned. The fifth in order of merit belongs, according to the Munich News, to an alphabet book, published at Essen by Baedeker, whch has run through 1200 editions."

According to William I. Haven, secretary of the American Bible Society, the number of Bibles in upwards of 500 languages and dialects, circulated throughout the world, reaches a total of 12,000,000 copies a year. These figures do not include the American Revised Version, the sale of which is steadily increasing.

BOOKS AND BOOKSELLERS OF RUSSIA.

We take the liberty of reproducing herewith the substance of an article by Ivan Narodny which appeared under the above title in a recent number of The Independent. Mr. Narodny is a prominent Russian bookseller and publisher, now visiting this country. Some of his works, which are well known in Russia, have been translated into English. A copy of his latest book, "Echoes of Myself," a collection of idealistic short stories, is noted in our issue of January 22.

A bookseller in Russia, says Mr. Narodny, is a highly respected personage in his own town. Doctors, clergymen, lawyers, teachers, or various officials, stand below the social level of a bookseller. The word of a bookseller on any art or literary question is law and gospel, and he is considered the final intellectual authority to whom all others appeal. Not only the success of a book, but also that of a composition, art production, song recital, concert, lecture, or theatrical entertainment, to a great extent, lies in the hands of a bookseller. He is the man who leads in the spiritual life of his town. This is because a Russian bookseller is not merely a commercial man, but, generally speaking, an expert, whose knowledge of the art, literature, and music of the world is above the average. He speaks at least two, and sometimes three, languages, and is a man of high education, often a university graduate who has decided not to enter the priesthood or other profession, as he at first intended. This respectable social standing is the outgrowth of a certain tradition. Most of the works of the first Russian writers were published in the early part of the nineteenth century by wealthy admirers, who, having paid a good honorarium to the authors, did not contemplate the making of any money from selling the books; the object was rather to spread abroad knowledge of their works. They as dealers often sold the books from their own houses, or hired young students or literary men to sell them for the mere cost of paper and printing. Thus the bookselling trade gradually developed until it reached its present high position.

A Russian bookshop sells not only books but music, stationery, and various products of art and handicraft. Reproductions of Rembrandt, Millet, Whistler, Boecklin, Repin, Verestchagin and others are commonly kept on sale. Mr. Narodny's shop, in a town of five thousand inhabitants, contained over five thousand books, some six hundred piano pieces and songs, and about two hundred reproductions of the work of great painters, besides etchings and small drawings by local artists. His annual sales were from ten to twelve thousand rubles (about $5000 to $6000), two-thirds of which came from the books. He also managed all the public entertainments of the town, for which he made no charge. This is customary in towns of this size, but not in the larger cities.

"Though the greatest number of my customers were peasants, petty officials and teachers," says Mr. Narodny, "yet I disposed of books of high literary merit only. I sold most short stories, biographies, dramas, essays, and high class novels, but I doubt if I disposed of as many as twenty sensational love stories or other boulevard fiction in the course of a year." The best-liked Russian books when he was in business were the short stories by Tchekhoff, novels by Dostoyevsky and Korolenko, essays by Tolstoi, stories by Turgenieff and Shtchedrin, poems by Lermontoff and Pushkin, and dramas by Gogol, Tchekhoff and others. The most appreciated foreign playwrights were Ibsen, Lessing, Hauptmann and Maeterlinck. The biographies of Benjamin Franklin and Abraham Lincoln were the "best sellers" among the American books. Other very popular American authors were Cooper, Poe, Longfellow, Mark Twain and Emerson. Some of the living American authors well known in Russia are Jack London, Mark Twain, Upton Sinclair and Edwin Markham. Certain Russian publishers have tried the publication of the most popular American novels, but such books have entirely failed because Russian readers find them lacking in such psychological profoundness or ethical tendency as they have been educated to expect from their own novelists. It is rarely one cannot find in a provincial bookshop something by Goethe, Shakespeare, Schopenhauer, Hugo, Ibsen, Poe or Emerson. The English classics that sold best in Mr. Narodny's shop were Shakespeare, Milton, Emerson, Darwin, Dickens, Spencer and Byron. Russian readers like English poetry and admire English philosophy, but dislike English fiction. French, Hungarian or Italian fiction makes a stronger appeal to them.

Most Russian books, like those of other Continental countries, are issued in paper covers. Russian readers dislike conventionally bound books, thinking they are meant for young people, students or undeveloped minds. Everybody in Russia likes to bind his books according to his individual taste. Classics or works of famous authors can be sold in edition bindings, but never a work by an unknown author. One publisher who issued Mark Twain's works desired to make them more attractive by imitating the original American edition. He sold three editions in paper covers, but the bound editions found no buyers. Again, illustrations in fiction tend to belittle the work in the eyes of Russian readers, for it is a tradition that a book carrying illustrations is intended for a mind void of imagination. Occasionally the photograph of an author is printed as a frontispiece, but even this is generally limited to reference books or volumes of poems by authors of reputation. Juvenile books, books of travel and technical works, however, have the necessary illustrations and drawings. Editions de luxe, regularly of quarto size, have illustrations drawn by the best artists of the country and usually reproduced in photogravure.

Rarely does a Russian publisher advertise his books in periodicals or sell them from dummies. Each year he issues a catalog of all his books and distributes it in his district, and this is his only method of advertising. Reviews in periodicals and discussions in society give the first hints of the literary merit and the profundity of a newly-published book and stimulate interest in it. As a prime requisite a Russian novel or drama must have a strong ethical motive and certain psychologic depth or it is considered trash. Russian writers pay less attention to beauty of style than to ethical tendency and psychological truth. For that reason Mr. Narodny considers the works of Turgenieff less impressive and fascinating than those of Dostoyevsky, Gogol and others. In Russia, too, it makes less difference than it does in America whether a book is of native origin or a translation. Mr. Narodny sold as many copies of Ibsen's dramas as of those by Tchekhoff, and more of Emerson's essays than of essays by any Russian writer. "I recently happened to ask in a first-class New York department store," he says, "for some books by Dostoyevsky and Gogol in English, but the salesman in the book department replied that he had never even heard the names of such authors. Further conversation with him showed him to be as little acquainted with general literature as a clerk in any other department of that store.

"As I have already pointed out," concludes Mr. Narodny, "a Russian bookseller is a highly educated literary man, and it rests with him whether he sells a book or ignores it. Advertisements, hostile criticism, and other commercial tricks current in this country would fail to make a book succeed if the retailer should think it had no literary merit. Russian booksellers are often the invisible fingers of the Russian underground movements, and their shops are the spiritual windows through which the oppressed Russians get a glimpse of that freedom and civilization which has so far remained a dream for them."

REPRODUCTIONS OF OLD MANUSCRIPTS.

A PHOTOGRAPHIC apparatus has recently been invented by Dr. Carl von Arnhard, of Munich, Bavaria, for the easy and exact production of copies of old manuscripts in their original form without taking them out of the books in which they may be contained. The inventor, born in Munich July 16, 1850, studied philosophy and Oriental languages in the university of his native city and also in Leipzig. He is the author of a treatise entitled "Die Wasserweihe nach dem Ritus der æthiopischen Kirche," published in the Zeitschrift der deutschen morgenländischen Gesellschaft, in 1887. These studies impressed him with the slow and painful process of copying old manuscripts with the pen, and led him to devise some means of avoiding it. This desirable result has been attained by a very simple photographic apparatus, which, without camera and lens, with the aid of a small electric lantern constructed for this purpose, produces a perfect copy of a page of manuscript in about half a minute. Persons particularly interested in this unique invention may obtain further particulars from Dr. Georg Hauberrisser, Dienerstrasse 19, Munich.

HENRY T. COATES.

HENRY TROTH COATES, editor and author, and for many years head of one of the leading publishing firms of Philadelphia, died in his home, a suburb of that city, on Saturday, January 22, after a short illness. Henry T. Coates was born in Philadelphia, September 29, 1843, graduated from Haverford College in 1862 and had been a member of the old firm of Porter & Coates since 1868. After the death of Mr. Porter the firm became Henry T. Coates & Co. in 1895. In 1892 he separated from the retail booktrade, dividing his books between John Wanamaker and John W. C. Winston Co., and later selling his great stationery department to George W. Jacobs & Co.

Although fully in touch with the enterprising publishing plans of his father, Henry T. Coates was of distinctly literary turn and had special gifts as a compiler of very salable works. Among his best known compilations were "The Comprehensive Speaker" (1871); "Fireside Encyclopedia of Poetry" (1878); "Children's Book of Poetry," (1879); and he was the author of "The Short History of the American Trotting and Pacing Horse" (1901). John W. C. Winston is making many of these books pay most satisfactorily.

RESOLUTIONS OF THE PHILADELPHIA TRADE.

A meeting was called at 3 o'clock, January 25, 1910, at the office of the J. B. Lippincott Company, as a mark of respect to the memory of Mr. Henry T. Coates, who died January 22, 1910.

Craige Lippincott was called to the chair and C. C. Febiger acted as secretary.

The following resolution was read by Mr. Lippincott and was unanimously approved and a copy thereof was ordered to be sent to the family:

On motion the meeting then adjourned.

Resolved, That through the relations of Mr. Henry T. Coates to the publishing interests of Philadelphia during the past forty-two years he exerted a wide and exemplary influence in the business world, and the announcement of his death brings a sense of personal loss to his many associates in the booktrade.

Mr. Coates not only possessed the business qualifications of a successful bookseller and publisher, but he was also a man of scholarly attainments and unusually literary talents. As an editor he displayed broad information and excellent critical judgment. The "Children's Book of Poetry," which appeared under his editorship in 1879, has been a favorite with juvenile readers and parents for over a quarter of a century, and promises to keep his memory green in many homes for years to come. He was a man of public spirit, actively identified with various enterprises he deemed for the civic good. Likewise his interest extended into the domain of scientific research and advancement, and for a number of years he was associated in an official capacity with the Philadelphia Zoological Society and the Academy of Natural Sciences.

In the death of Mr. Coates, Philadelphia loses one of its useful and prominent citizens, and his fellow-publishers an honorable member of their guild, in the inner circle of which he was a leading spirit for so long a period.

The publishers and booksellers here assembled unanimously adopt this resolution as an expression of their loss, and direct that a copy of it be forwarded to the family of Mr Coates, with the assurance of their sincere sympathy.

OBITUARY NOTES.

WILLIAM TOMPKINS COMSTOCK, the architectural publisher, who died on January 16, was a native of Redding, Conn., where he was born in 1842. He was the second son of Elizabeth Tompkins and David Close Comstock. He prepared for college at Phillips Academy, Andover, and was graduated from Yale in the class of 1865. He received the degrees of A.B. and A.M. and was elected to Phi Beta Kappa. After leaving college he was instructor at Peekskill Military Academy and later was employed in the map publishing business and eventually formed the firm of Comstock & Cline for the manufacture and sale of maps and atlases. In the spring of 1877 he entered the firm of A. J. Bicknell & Co., publishers of architectural books, which had been established since 1865. He later became sole proprietor of this business and conducted it under his own name. He started in 1882 an architectural monthly, Building, later known as Architecture and Building. This was the second architectural publication started in the United States. Since 1899 the paper has been known as the Architects' and Builders' Magazine. In 1876 he married Miss Mary Ida Phillips, who survives him with one son, William Phillips Comstock, under whose supervision the business will be continued at 43 Warren Street, New York City.

JOHN A. MCQUILLAN, one of the best known travellers in the booktrade twenty years ago, died at his home in Wichita, Kan., on January 25. He was born in Ireland about sixty years ago. He came to America in early manhood, and was engaged for a time in the book-auction business for himself. Afterward he was clerk for a while with Tom O'Kane, a well-known dealer in old books in Nassau Street. New York, forty years ago. Eventually he went "on the road" and represented Pott, Young & Co. for several years during the seventies. In 1878 he joined the travelling staff of George Routledge & Sons, who at that time and for a decade or longer after had one of the most popular lines of standard authors and juvenile books in the market. He covered the Western field chiefly, and grew in the affectionate regard of every one with whom he came in contact because of his genial and gentlemanly personality. Just prior to the retirement, in 1893, of the house of Routledge as an American branch, McQuillan was compelled to give up business because of an affliction of the eyes which ultimately caused total blindness. He moved with his family to Oklahoma, where by reason of fortunate investments he was able to maintain a home, and later on, when his children needed better educational advantages, he moved to Wichita, Kan. His devoted wife kept him in touch with the book business and the friends he loved so well by reading regularly the trade journals and the letters of his old associates, and amid his family, the children of which are now grown, he died beloved by all.

THE POSTAL HEARING.

THE Committee on Post Office and Post Roads of the House of Representatives, now consisting of Mr. Weeks, of Massachusetts, chairman, and Representatives Gardner, Sperry, Stafford, Huff, Fassett, Smith, Lowden, Hamer, Durey, Dodds, Murdock, Moon, Finley, Lloyd, Small, Bell, Cox and Cameron, began hearings January 26 on the proposed change in second-class bulk rates advocated in the President's message.

The first day's hearing was given to the representatives of the Periodical Publishers' Association of America, and was opened by Frank H. Scott, president of the Century Company, with a general statement of the publishers' side of the matter. He reminded the committee that the prosperity of the magazines affected not only the publishers, but a great number of paper-makers, printers, authors, artists and advertisers; also, that magazine advertising stimulated an increase of all other classes of mail matter, and that a change would result in serious demoralization. He advised that all other economies be attempted before the periodical publishers were made to shoulder the burden of the postal deficit.

The main argument was made by George W. Wilder, president of the Butterick Publishing Company, who presented careful and elaborate statistics reviewing and re-analyzing the figures of the Post Office Department from a business point of view, to an extent which caused Representative Moon to ask whether Mr. Wilder was presenting an impeachment of the Post Office Department. Mr. Wilder replied that his analysis was for the purpose of showing that the department had evolved the wrong conclusions from the facts. His arguments were in support of the ten statements following:

1. In the year ended June 30, 1908, the weight of second-class matter compared to 1907 *de*creased 18,000,000 pounds. The postal expenditures *in*creased $18,000,000. There is something in it besides second-class matter.

2. In the Postmaster-General's report for 1909 the cost of second-class matter is figured on the basis of weight for all second-class matter 792,580,967 pounds. It should be figured on the basis of 694,865,884 pounds. This makes about $7,000,000 difference.

[The difference arises from the 53,156,094 pounds of free county circulation and from local delivery and other paid second-class matter.]

3. In this same report, among the items of cost charged to second-class matter there is Rural Free Delivery $13,821,100. That is, the loss caused by the policy of Rural Free Delivery is charged to second-class matter.

4. In arriving at the amount of transportation and other expenses based on weight to be charged against second-class matter, the estimate is made on a percentage of weight of second-class matter to the mail carried, which is claimed to be 63.91 per cent. This should be 35 per cent. It makes a difference of over $13,500,000.

[This discrepancy arises from the fact that the Post Office Department figures include equipment, which for first-class mail is often many times the amount of mail carried in mailbags, while the proportion of equipment to second-class mail is very small.]

5. Length of haul is not the determining factor in reaching the cost of transportation per pound carried. Other elements enter into it that make a pound in the shorter hauls average to cost the department more than a pound in the longer hauls. When the recommendation is made that because the magazines have an average haul of 1088 miles and the newspapers 291 miles, the newspapers should be charged the less, the recommendation is up against the fact.

6. The Postmaster-General's report for 1909 says: "Because of their long haul it costs 5 cents a pound to transport magazines and 2 cents to transport newspapers." Granting the premises, and allowing for handling, the cost of transporting and handling a pound of newspapers is greater than the cost of transporting and handling a pound of magazines.

7. The average haul on magazines is not 1088 miles. Certainly not over 882, and probably much less. The average haul on newspapers is not 291, but 372 miles.

8. If the Post Office Department charged at regular rates for the matter it carries free, there would be no so-called deficit.

9. The Postal Department is being paid by second-class matter at the present rate all that it should ask for the service it renders. It receives from second-class matter all that on fair terms it costs the department to carry second-class matter.

10. If through the department's method of management, and more particularly through its methods of bookkeeping, the cost of handling second-class matter is made high, such cost price is not necessarily a fair price to publishers.

THE MAGAZINE PROTEST.

A pamphlet has been issued by the Postal Committee of the Periodical Publishers' Association of America on "The Answer of the Magazines—and Their Demand." This cites the striking differences between the department's apportionment of expenses to second-class matter and the true apportionments as figured by Mr. Wilder, and shows that the department's figures should be reduced by the following amounts:

Rural Free Delivery	$13,821,100
Transportation	24,000,000
Railway Mail Service	4,098,829
Railway Post Office Service	2,353,387
Postmasters, etc	16,085,072
Total reduction in the Department's estimate of loss on second-class matter	$60,358,388

Declaring that "the Post Office Department does not know at all what expenses should be charged against second-class matter according to the methods of a modern cost expert examining a complicated, modern business organization," the pamphlet concludes as follows:

"It is wrong and absurdly wrong that a thousand publishing industries built up through thirty years of an established postal rate as the basis of their business operations should be periodically attacked with propositions that would annihilate most of them, when there is no exact, or approximately exact, knowledge behind these propositions.

"The magazines demand that Congress shall provide for a competent cost expert to work in the Post Office Department, and that this expert shall be given full opportunity to get what the department has never produced, the facts and figures which show just how much the second-class mail is costing the Government in excess of the revenue it produces."

PROTEST FROM CHICAGO.

At a mass meeting representing printers, publishers, and allied interests, called to take action in regard to the proposed increase in second-class rates, held on Thursday, January 20, 1910, at Chicago, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, An advance in rates would cause incalculable injury to every branch of the publishing and printing trades of the country, and would throw thousands of employees out of employment, the various branches of this industry, representing newspapers, trade journals, publishers, printers, type founders, paper makers, engravers, ink manufacturers, press builders, machinery manufacturers, etc., having annually an output of $100,000,000 in Chicago alone, enter their emphatic denial that said interests cause any deficit whatever to the revenues of the government; therefore be it

Resolved, By the united action of the allied interests of the entire publishing and printing trades of Chicago, that we hereby register an emphatic protest against any movement or declaration coming from any source, which may have for its purpose any advance in second-class postal rates, the effect of which would be to seriously cripple the industry everywhere and greatly hamper every industrial development fostered through the instrumentality of publishing and printing.

Resolved, That request be made for suspension of all action in order to give opportunity to submit argument.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be transmitted to the President of the United States, the Postmaster-General, and to members of both houses of Congress, as expressing the views of the many trades concerned in maintaining the present just rates on second-class mail matter.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be also sent broadcast to the press of the country, and the aid of the same be asked in behalf of our many and varied interests.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

RENE DOUMIC's critical study of the life and works of George Sand has been translated into English by Miss Alys Hallard, and this translation is nearly ready for publication.

H. G. WELLS has completed a humorous story—one which he expects to publish in the spring. He is now engaged upon a long novel which will probably not be brought out until the end of this year. It deals with English political life.

DEMETRA VAKA BROWN, whose book on the life of Turkish women, "Haremlik," was one of the important books of last year, has written in collaboration with her husband, Kenneth Brown, a novel which Houghton Mifflin Co. will publish next month. It deals in an unusual way with the subject of international marriages.

DR. WILLIAM B. SCOTT, Blair professor of geology in Princeton University, received word from the Geological Society of London that the Wolaston medal for geological research will be conferred upon him this year. This is considered a reward of distinction in geological work, and is awarded in recognition of extensive study and research in geology, paleontology and allied subjects, in which Professor Scott has for some time been engaged.

REV. CLAY MAC CAULEY, Unitarian clergyman and author, has been decorated by the Emperor of Japan with the fourth class Order of the Rising Sun in recognition of his services to the Japanese people. Mr. Mac Cauley has spent much of his life in Japan, and is the author of several books on the country and its problems in both Japanese and English and has also made several English translations of Japanese books. Mr. Mac Cauley returned to the United States in 1900, and during the Japanese-Russian war devoted himself to placing Japan's cause before the American public. He returned to Japan last August and resumed his educational work at Tokio. Mr. Mac Cauley was born in Chambersburg, Pa., in 1843, and was graduated from Princeton in 1864. He is a veteran of the Civil War, has been connected with the Bureau of Ethnology at Washington and with the College for Advanced Learning at Tokio, and has been the delegate from Japan to various educational congresses.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE smallest newspaper circulation in the world is probably enjoyed by a little sheet published by the German Emperor himself. It is entitled A Daily Record of International Opinion. Two copies only are printed, one of them being placed in the hands of the Emperor and the other going into the National Library.

THE monthly Bibliography of Economics is now being revised for the first annual cumulation, which will appear about March 10. H. Parker Willis's series of articles on the tariff for 1909, begun in the November number, will be continued in January and February. Mr. Willis is exceptionally qualified for the task of expounding the new tariff and its effect on foreign relations, and his articles will take their place as a standard authority.

THE February Century will contain many appreciations of its late editor, Richard Watson Gilder, with consideration of various phases of Mr. Gilder's public activities by George Edward Woodberry, Henry Van Dyke, Jacob A. Riis, Cecilia Beaux and Robert Underwood Johnson; and tributes by President Taft, Ambassador Bryce, John Burroughs, Andrew Carnegie, Helen Keller, and many others who knew and loved the man. There will be, also, a reproduction of the portrait painted by Cecilia Beaux, and of Mr. Gilder's last serious poem, "Love in a City."

THE first number of El Heraldo Americano, a semi-monthly newspaper designed to reach Spanish speaking people throughout the world, has just been issued from its offices at 366 Fifth Avenue, New York. El Heraldo Americano will be entirely independent, free from compromise or political aims and essentially cosmopolitan. Its object is to supply a long felt and ever increasing need in journalism among the Spanish speaking people and to establish closer relations and more intimate associations among the Latin-American countries. Its desire is to destroy prejudice created in these countries by sensational publications of irresponsible origin.

GEORGE MEREDITH's posthumous novel, "Celt and Saxon," is begun in the January Fortnightly Review. In the same issue appears an estimate of "The Later Heroines of Maurice Maeterlinck," by Mme. Maeterlinck. The Anglo-German war scare looms large in more than one English review this month. The Fortnightly devotes no less than three articles to it; The Contemporary Review has a reassuring article "About German Spies;" while in The Nineteenth Century and After a German resident of England attempts to set forth "Germany's Real Attitude Towards England." Other articles of booktrade interest in the last-mentioned review are "La Litterature Française Contemporaine," by Andre Beaunier, and "The Censorship of Stage Plays: Another Point of View," by Viola Tree.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

ELLIOTT STOCK, London, will publish on February 1 a volume entitled "Thirty-three Years' Adventures in Bookland," by David Cuthbertson, of the library of Edinburgh University.

ADDITIONS to the Library of Congress at Washington during the year amounted to 167,777 volumes, in addition to pamphlets and other material, bringing the total book collection up to 1,702,635 volumes.

T. Y. CROWELL & Co. have a new revised edition, with additional chapters, of "Punishment and Reformation," by Frederick H.

Wines, a book for governors, for legislators and for judges to ponder over.

FRANK D. BEATTYS, New York City, publishes "The Bright Side," by "Charlie" Skinner, for many years the New York State Superintendent of Public Instruction. It contains the cheeriest quotations from newspapers, magazines, letters and books. It is a good volume for the rostrum desk in a school assembly hall.

THE national annual prize of 25,000 francs, founded in 1874 by King Leopold II. for the writer of the best work on a given theme, is to be thrown open for international competition in 1911. The prescribed subject is "The Progress of Aviation and the Most Effective Means of Developing It." Intending competitors must send in their work to the Ministry of Art and Science in Brussels by March 1, 1911.

THE Mexican Government has given its official sanction to "Terry's Mexico," just published by Houghton Mifflin Co., and has ordered copies placed in the various Government departments in the City of Mexico, and also sent abroad to the Mexican legations and consulates. President Diaz and Finance Minister Limantour were highly gratified with the character of the book.

JOHN W. LUCE Co. are bringing out one more dictionary, "The Cooked-up Peary-odd-i-cal Dictionaryana and Who's Hoot in the Best Arctic Circles; the Real Truth in Humor on the Great Controversy, with Numerous Illustrations by D. C. Bartholomew." There is always room for a new dictionary in Boston, thanks to the city's passion for exactitude, and the new work is quite as amusing as the "Foolish."

DUFFIELD & COMPANY, in addition to the titles we announced last week, have ready "The Passion Play of Oberammergau," by Montrose J. Moses, a book especially timely, as the year 1910 is the year of the Passion Play, which draws so many tourists from America—an influence which the steamship companies are already feeling. The text used by the Bavarian peasants, with an interesting introduction, is given in the present book.

MRS. HENRY DUDENEY'S new novel, "The Shoulder-Knot," will be published by Cassell & Company early in February. The "shoulder-knot" is an imp of terror that saps the man's strength and obsesses his mind. A mere shadow at first, it becomes at length something more than the man himself. As a poet his work is affected. He sees things distorted, and the resultant product of his mind is such as to stagger the well-balanced world. How he loved and how he found his freedom from his incubus is the story.

JOHN LANE Co. publish this week "Galahad Jones," the romantic adventure of a bank clerk, by Arthur H. Adams, who lets his hero find a letter addressed "To You," which leads him to gallant adventures from which he emerges a changed man; and "Airships in Peace and War," by R. P. Hearne, which is the second edition of the author's "Aerial Warfare," with new material giving descriptions of all the more prominent aeroplanes of 1909, illustrated by descriptive photographs and drawings, and giving a diagrammatic view of the Wright aeroplane.

MOFFAT, YARD & Co. publish to-day the long-awaited "Life and Art of Richard Mansfield," with selections from his letters by William Winter, a fine work in two volumes, fully illustrated. Winter set himself the aim "to make an authentic record of the life, a just estimate of achievement, a veritable picture of the man." That, it is said, he has accomplished. It is no ordinary biography, but a notable example of fearless, creative art, amazing insight and searching analysis. Frederick Palmer's book on "Central America and Its Problems," is an authoritative work valuable for reference, and his almost incredible story is also published by Moffat, Yard & Co.

L. C. PAGE & COMPANY announce for publication some time during February a new volume by Josephine Tozier to be entitled "Susan in Sicily." Miss Tozier will be favorably remembered as the author of "Among English Inns," issued some six years ago, which has gone through several editions and is still in very great demand. It is a sprightly volume, part fiction and part travel, told in the letters of a vivacious American girl travelling through the land of the Sicilian. The work is authentic, and describes in Miss Tozier's own inimitable way the dark-haired Sicilians, their customs, the Sicilian towns and landmarks—in fact every interesting site and fact connected with the "garden of the Mediterranean."

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. have chosen Meredith Nicholson's "The Lords of High Decision" for their third prize review contest among their readers. Commenting on the results of the first contest, the judges stated that the average contribution to the contest was better than the average review which is printed in the newspapers—more spontaneous and less conventional. They thus indicated a decided preference for amateur reviews over those coming from the professional pen. And now they have awarded the first prize in their latest contest to a gentleman, who, unbeknown to the judges at the time of their decision, proves to be the editor of an Arkansas paper. Clio Harper, of the Arkansas Democrat, is the recipient of first honors.

STUDENTS of Shakespeare will be keenly interested in William Leavitt Stoddard's "Life of William Shakespeare, Expurgated," to be brought out on February 5 by W. A. Butterfield, Boston. Mr. Stoddard was formerly on the editorial staff of The Atlantic Monthly, and is now associated with The Youth's Companion. His present book is a condensed, readable and at the same time scholarly life of the great poet. It is undoubtedly the most complete Shakespeare biography, since it includes some documents and records not to be found even in the latest edition of Sidney Lee. Of particular interest is the "Northumberland Manuscript," of 1596 or 1597, of which the fly-leaf, covered with miscellaneous scribblings, is reproduced in facsimile; its authenticity has been vouched for by an expert.

THE booktrade throughout the country will be interested to know that hereafter The Saalfield Publishing Company, of Akron, Ohio, will control the Billy Whiskers Books formerly issued by Brewer, Barse & Company, of Chicago. The Saalfield Company issued the first books in this series written by Mrs. Frances Trego Montgomery, of Chicago, but later the author gave several books of similar title to Brewer, Barse & Company. On the first day of January, 1910, The Saalfield Publishing Company took over the plates of "Billy Whiskers' Vacation," "Billy Whiskers' Grandchildren," "Billy Whiskers' Friends," "Santa Claus' Twin Brother," and "The Billy Whiskers Paint Book." All Billy Whiskers Books have enjoyed a phenomenal success for many years, and The Saalfield Publishing Company are to be congratulated on securing the control of the entire series.

THE ALICE HARRIMAN CO. have among their very successful publications "The Brand," a story of the Flathead Reservation, by Therese Broderick ("Tin Schreiner"), which became known to 300,000 Americans during the Government lottery of 1909; "Chaperoning Adrienne Through the Yellowstone," by Alice Harriman, a most delightful vacation tale, now in its third edition; "Pioneer Days on Puget Sound," by Arthur A. Denny, one of Seattle's founders; "Chronicles of Oldfields," the story of a Kentucky village in the early fifties, giving a beautiful picture of men's friendship; and "Marcus Whitman—Pathfinder and Patriot," Dr. Myron Eells's story of the saving of Oregon to the Union. There is something original about all the books of this firm, and they are tastefully put on the market according to their special subjects and requirements.

SPON & CHAMBERLAIN announce a number of new books and new editions, especially mentioning a new revised edition of "Workshop Receipts," which has been revised, rewritten and all arranged under one alphabet. This work will be completed in about four volumes. A very important new book by Dr. E. J. B. Cordeiro, of the United States Navy, on "Atmosphere and Its Characteristics, Cyclones and Causes of Storms," etc.; a new and revised edition of "Goldingham on the Design and Construction of Oil Engines;" a new book by Morgan on the "Construction of a Bi-plane Glider," with detailed plans; an important work by Middleton, "Concrete Building Construction;" Thatcher, on "Hard and Soft Soldering;" De Vignier, on the "Proportioning of Parts of Model Engines;" Wright, on "Inventions, Part 2, Foreign Patents;" Schneider, "A Handbook on the Morgan Organ;" Marshall, "Handy Electrical Dictionary;" Marshall, "Magnets and Magnetism: Simply Explained;" "Useful Hints and Tips for Automobilists;" "Practical Upholsterer;" "Violin Making and Adjusting," and "Window Making for Carpenters and Joiners."

PERSONAL NOTE.

J. WALLACE MACKAY, who has been connected with A. C. Armstrong & Son for the past fifteen years, has left their employ and gone on the vaudeville stage. He has long been known unprofessionally as a very clever music mimic, and his numerous friends in the booktrade wish him every success in his new career. Mr. Mackay holds that the good and the ennobling lessons of life may be taught by means of the comic that keeps this end in view, as well as by the solemn, and he will aim especially to use his unusual talents to cheer the oppressed and down-hearted and make them glad. He can imitate any instrument of music, and he will play only what is inspiring and lovely and gladdening on his unique, natural Scottish fife.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers, under their own names, are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, or those advertising anonymously, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line. All objectionable books will be excluded so far as they come under our notice.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No reduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplayed advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no account must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their Communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

☞ In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash.]

☞ Write your wants plainly, and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly," does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay" booksellers should take the usual precautions, as to advertisers not known to them that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

"The Calling of Dan Matthews is the answering cry of my own heart and soul. If it were possible I would like to see the book printed in letters of fire, and its pages bordered with flaming swords."—From a correspondent's letter.

The Calling of Dan Matthews

By HAROLD BELL WRIGHT, Author of

"The Shepherd of the Hills" "That Printer of Udells"

"With all his simplicity of style, Mr. Wright has the art of making his characters live—of making us know and love them. We feel that we have been in Corinth ourselves, and that it was worth while, aside from the pretty love story."
—Chicago Record-Herald

"In this day of sensational stories and the writing of improbable books, The Calling of Dan Matthews is a relief to the jaded reader."—San Francisco Bulletin.

"A good, wholesome story."
—Baltimore American

"It is well told." —Boston Globe

"It is impossible to read the book without being happier for it."—Portland Spectator

"A very dramatic and interesting story."
—Chicago Journal

"A character study full of vital thought, humor and action."—Washington Times

"Unquestionably the author knows the life with which he deals."—Chicago Post

"Its portrayal of character carries with it the assurance of truth."—Buffalo News

The Great Year of 1909

THE past season has seen a list of books issued by Doubleday, Page & Company that has gained for itself an altogether unprecedented record. Besides many new authors of excellent works, the following writers, whose books have met with remarkable sales, have contributed to the success of 1909:

IRVING BACHELLER
JOSEPHINE DASKAM BACON
HILAIRE BELLOC
E. F. BENSON
NELTJE BLANCHAN
MARY STEWART CUTTING
MARY DILLON
A. CONAN DOYLE
O. HENRY
RUDYARD KIPLING
MAURICE LEBLANC
CHARLES BATTEL LOOMIS
MIRIAM MICHELSON
AGNES C. MURPHY
E. NESBIT
MEREDITH NICHOLSON
GENE STRATTON-PORTER
W. S. RAINSFORD
GRACE S. RICHMOND
JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER
F. BERKLEY SMITH
WILLIAM HOWARD TAFT
MRS. HUMPHRY WARD
BOOKER T. WASHINGTON
C. N. AND A. M. WILLIAMSON

Actions and Reactions

BY RUDYARD KIPLING

This new volume by Mr. Kipling, meeting with the success it deserves, is of especial interest, as being the first collection of his tales since the Nobel Prize was awarded to him for "the most distinguished work in the field of idealistic tendency." $1.50.

The Lords of High Decision

BY MEREDITH NICHOLSON

This masterpiece of Mr. Nicholson, author of "The House of a Thousand Candles" and "The Port of Missing Men," has been liked so well that already in two editions, 40,000 copies have been printed—and it has just begun its career. Four illustrations by A. I. Keller. $1.50.

A Girl of the Limberlost

By GENE STRATTON-PORTER

Though "Freckles," of which this book is the companion story, yearly sells its tens of thousands, "A Girl of Limberlost," standing for true womanhood, as did "Freckles" for pure manhood, is on its way to exceed these figures. Four illustrations in color by W. T. Benda. $1.50.

The Master

BY IRVING BACHELLER

Mr. Bacheller has continued to show his ability and insight as a writer of popular and widely-read fiction—a reputation established by "Eben Holden" and "D'ri and I." "The Master" is one of the features of 1909, both for its literary merit as a novel and for its selling power. Fixed price, $1.20.

Arsène Lupin

BY MAURICE LEBLANC AND EDGAR JEPSON

The great French expert of the Detective-story has created the masterpiece of his life—the character of Arsène Lupin. His wide appeal to Americans may be judged from the fact that the second edition of this book exceeded the first, and by remembering the play taken from M. Leblanc's work which recently ran so successfully in New York. Illustrated. $1.50.

The Southerner

BY NICHOLAS WORTH

A new view of Southern life is portrayed in this autobiography—the buoyant, hopeful, constructive struggle of the men of a Southern State since the war. The book is one of great originality and literary merit. Fixed price, $1.20.

The Big Book of 1910

Lord Loveland Discovers America

BY C. N. AND A. M. WILLIAMSON

Authors of "Lady Betty Across the Water," "The Lightning Conductor," and "Set in Silver."

There can be no doubt that this book will equal, or outstrip, all the authors' previous successes. The demand before publication far exceeded that for "Set in Silver," and the reorders for the book predict an unusual sale.

The story deals with a new idea—that of an English Marquis, discredited and cast adrift in America, fighting his way from the bottom up, and, in the end, proving himself to be a man.

Illustrations in color by George Brehm. Fixed price, $1.20.

TYPES FROM CITY STREETS

By HUTCHINS HAPGOOD

With Eight Full-Page Drawings by Glenn O. Coleman

MR. HAPGOOD, who will be well remembered as the author of "The Spirit of the Ghetto," of which a new edition has just appeared, has undertaken in this volume to present a record of his actual experience in observing unusual phases of life in the under-world of New York. He has aimed not so much to picture the squalid side of that life as its charm. Among the types selected are not only Bowery boys, criminals, small politicians, "spieler" girls, and Bowery "cruisers," but Bohemians of the higher type, men-about-town, artists, etc.

The Crowds and the Veiled Woman

A Novel - By MARIAN COX

THIS is an unusual book of fiction, departing as it does from familiar and stereotyped forms, and presenting a new and original theme. In epigrammatic and brilliant style it tells a mystical and symbolical story, evolved from the great Truths Two men repudiate the modern world because its roar and crowds are destructive of all that to them is admirable. The older man, "Monsieur," charges himself with the other man's life, to the extent that he—Gaspard—can preserve his genius from the contemporary pitfalls, and by refusing to live as others live, can undertake to discover for his art the Soul—the Soul in which mankind no longer believes and without which there is only—the Void. It will appeal to the intellectual and artistic, and to all those who read Nietszche, Schopenhauer, and Von Hartmann, for it carries the metaphysics of pessimism to an ultimate never before attempted in fiction or romance.

The Good of Life and Other Little Essays

By PROF. WILLIAM CLEAVER WILKINSON

Author of "Foreign Classics in English," "Some New Literary Valuations," Etc.

THE Latin words "De Omnibus Rebus et Quebusdam Aliis" might well describe this book because the little essays that comprise the volume treat of pretty much everything in the world, and of a few things besides! There are social essays, ethical essays, even religious essays, political essays, literary essays, essays descriptive, essays narrative, essays of personal reminiscence, essays of adventure in travel, pedagogical essays, biographical essays, historical essays, exegetical essays, essays in character-sketching, essays in hygienics, essays in dietetics—all with a play of humor and wit often enlivening the seriousness and gravity of discussions that brevity and the touch-and-go art of treatment never permit to grow tedious.

Makers of Sorrow and Makers of Joy

By DORA MELEGARI

Authorized Translation by Marian Lindsay

THIS work has been aptly described as one "for serious readers and others who earnestly desire to do right, and are willing for this purpose to make a subjective study of their own emotions and motives." Its theme is that what have commonly been considered as slight individual faults and habits of thought and feeling—such as vanity, jealousy, impatience, deceit, uncharitableness in judgment, etc.—should really be adjudged by public opinion as offenses that are criminal in their nature, inasmuch as the effects they produce are extremely damaging to character and social well-being.

Dominion and Power

By CHARLES BRODIE PATTERSON

Author of "The Will to Be Well," "The Measure of a Man," Etc.

THIS is a new edition of one of Charles Brodie Patterson's most popular books. It has been thoroughly revised and contains some five or six new chapters dealing with Mental and Physical Health, Psychic Development, The Right Use of the Breath, Self-Control, Etc. It is filled with uplifting and helpful suggestions, and must, of necessity prove of benefit to thoughtful readers. "Dominion and Power" has had a large sale in this country, has already passed through several editions in England, and recently been translated into Dutch, in which language three editions have been called for in a little over a year.

The author is buoyantly optimistic throughout, and helpful to courageous and wholesome living. It is a good book for those who feel the need of fuller instruction on the subject of the higher development of mankind.

History of Socialism in the United States

Revised Edition—By MORRIS HILLQUIT

SINCE the first edition of this work was published about ten years have elapsed and many changes have taken place in the great social movement. No one is better fitted for the task of recording the facts than the author. The first edition has passed through four printings, and this new edition, which has been positively reset from cover to cover, and brought right up to date, will be necessary in every well appointed library

The book constitutes a complete account of the origin, development, and present status of socialistic movements throughout the United States, indispensable to an intelligent appreciation of socialism as it exists in this country. It is a work of extensive scope and sociological as well as historical value.

Nervous States—Their Nature and Causes

By DR. PAUL DUBOIS

Author of "Psychic Treatment of Nervous Disorders," "Influence of the Mind on the Body." "Self-Control and How to Secure It," Etc., Etc. Authorized Translation by Edward G. Richards

MOST men and women are subject to various degrees of neurasthenia, due to the influence of fatigue by which are brought on psychic debilities, so that nature reacts and they become irritable or sad. The most healthy of men may become temporarily neurasthenic. The reader feels as in the former works, that this author is not alone a scientific man, but that to his equipment as a skilled investigator and practitioner, he adds largeness of vision and rare humanity.

THE BRAND

A Story of

The Flathead Reservation

By THERESE BRODERICK (TIN SCHREINER)

Three Hundred Thousand Americans became acquainted with this Indian reserve during the government lottery of 1909. This intense novel appeals to nine out of ten in every section of the country. One of our readers wrote: "I couldn't get the characters out of my head for days. I felt as though I had met them somewhere." The linotype man said: "Don't ask me about proof, I want to know more about Bess." These remarks from jaded workers show what kind of a book "THE BRAND" is.

Chronicles of Oldfields

By THOMAS N. ALLEN

This charming book depicts the characters of a Kentucky village in the early fifties, chiefly Dominie Collins, Hon. Obe Crews, Doc. Humes and Squire Buckley, and the happenings that interested them. These men have all the qualities that make "Col. Carter," whom F. Hopkinson Smith has immortalized so lovable. No more delightful and sympathetic treatment of men's friendship has ever been written. Believe us, we cannot too highly recommend CHRONICLES OF OLDFIELDS. It has the flavor of Cranford, or Sir Roger de Coverly, of Goldsmith, and—best of all—of itself!

Chaperoning Adrienne Through the Yellowstone

By ALICE HARRIMAN

The Oregonian says: "The best and the brightest, the funniest and the most deligthful vacation tale ever written for visitors to the famous Yellowstone Park. An attractive widow chaperones her pretty and more than wilful niece through the Yellowstone Park to discourage Randolph Cecil Sears and to encourage Senator Rowley. When General Tenniel appears, to say nothing of 'Miss Siggins'—but you'd better read the book, which is in its third edition."

TWO SUCCESSFUL JANUARY NOVELS

PASSERS-BY

By ANTHONY PARTRIDGE

Third Printing. Cloth. $1.50

THE UP GRADE

By WILDER GOODWIN

Second Printing. Cloth. $1.50

"In illustration, letter press and book making both are neat examples of refined publishing. Both are good stories. The heroine of "Passers-By" is a street singer whose career becomes mixed up with a mysterious and dominant figure known as the Marquis of Ellingham. The hero in "The Up Grade" is a man who "finds" himself by pursuing his ideal in womanhood through a rapid succession of dramatic situations."

—WALTER LITTLEFIELD in Chicago Record-Herald.

One of the Most Brilliant of American Biographies

LIFE AND ART OF RICHARD MANSFIELD

WITH SELECTIONS FROM HIS LETTERS

By WILLIAM WINTER

¶ Note that this is no ordinary biography, but one of the most notable examples of fearless creative art this country has produced.

¶ It is a work of breadth and form, of amazing insight, of searching analysis, a life portrait, painted, like the portrait of Cromwell, "wart and all."

¶ The object of the book was declared by its author to be, "to make an authentic record of the Life, a just estimate of the Achievement, a veritable picture of the Man." This he has accomplished.

Fully illustrated. Two Volumes. Large 8vo. $6.00 net; by mail, $6.40

The Only Real Book on the Subject

CENTRAL AMERICA AND ITS PROBLEMS

By FREDERICK PALMER F.R.G.S.

¶ This is the only book in existence which describes Central America.

¶ It deals with Nicaragua, Guatemala, Honduras, Costa Rica, San Salvador and Panama, with three chapters on Mexico in its political and ethnographical relations to Central America and its political relations to the United States.

¶ The work is not only a vivid description of existing conditions, but an authoritative work valuable for reference about history, population and resources. It is a book for all public and private libraries.

¶ It is the result of a recent thorough investigation, on Mr. Palmer's part, of all these republics; and he found there conditions worse than those in Russia and Turkey. The story is almost incredible.

Fully illustrated. Large 8vo. $2.50 net: by mail, $2.70

Edited by the American Revision Committee

"The most excellent translation of the Scripture in the English language."

CHARLES GALLAUDET TRUMBULL, Editor of Sunday School Times says: It is not a new Bible. It is the same old Bible that our fathers and forefathers read and treasured. But the American Version brings the messages and truths and eternal promises of that Bible closer home to us than ever before.

The American Standard Bible is published in all popular sizes of type and every style of binding at prices from 35 cents to $20.00

An extensive vocabulary and a series of texts on Mythology, Folk Lore, Historical Episodes and Songs are included in this valuable work. The Bontoc Igorot are an interesting and highly developed people, one of the most powerful of the Philippine races. This is the first written grammar of their language and marks an epoch in their history

$5.00 (20s.)

Religion and Literature

The Pleroma, An Essay on the Origin of Christianity

By Dr. Paul Carus

160 pp. with added collateral reading, notes and index.

Paganism and Judaism are brought before the test of scientific inquiry to discover what measure of truth lies in their claims of being the mother of Christianity. The author's method is purely scientific. History, legend, myth, dogma and philosophy are all put into the crucible of critique and the results show why Christianity was the fulfillment, or "Pleroma" of the needs of the times.

Cloth, $1.00

Open Court Publishing Company's New Books for 1910

Psychological Origin and Nature of Religion

95 pp. By James H. Leuba, Bryn Mawr College

An exposition by an acknowledged authority on the nature of mental power and its relation to the origin of religion. The last of the series, "Religions, Ancient and Modern." 40c. Net

The Problem of Evil

The Classifications of Religions

86 pp. Boards, cloth back By Duren J. H. Ward, Ph.D. (Leipsic)

An exact statement of the methods of classifying religions by dogma, deities, geographical distribution, philosophies, language, racial and historical connections. "Valuable because exact." 75 cents

The Apocryphal Acts

By Bernhard Pick, Ph.D., D.D.

225 pp. Notes, Index and bibliography. Boards, cloth back.

A thorough study of the apocryphal acts of Paul, Peter, John, Andrew and Thomas, in which genuine reminiscences are clearly distinguished from legends. $1.25

Akbar, Emperor of India

By Dr. Richard von Garbe, Rector of the University of Tubingen

Illustrated monograph, 41 pages.

An illuminating picture of the life and customs of India in the 16th century. Akbar was a prince who deserves to be known by every one whose heart is moved by the spectacle of true human greatness. 50c. Net

Music in the Old Testament

By Prof. Carl Heinrich Cornill, Breslau, Germany

35 pp. Artistic cover design. Well printed on fine paper.

An interesting lecture given for the benefit of the Home for the Aged Music Teachers at Breslau, Feb. 9, 1906. What the Old Testament says about music is illustrated by many interesting pictures of antique harps, cymbals, lutes, and other ancient instruments. 50c.

Angelus Silesius, Translated from the German By Dr. Paul Carus

170 pp. Blue and gold edition.

A collection of quaint rhymes by a 17th century German mystic named Johannes Scheffler, better known as Angelus Silesius. $1.00 Net

Plotinus, His Life, Times and Philosophy

57 pp. and notes. By Kenneth S. Guthrie

This little book gives a careful study of pagan philosophy and points out its close relation to the origins of Christianity. Cloth, 50c.

The Message of Philo Judaeus of Alexandria

By Kenneth S. Guthrie

90 pp. with over 700 careful references.

A brief classified outline of the most important of Philo's utterances. A study of Philo might be regarded as one of a series of texts of comparative religion. Cloth, $1.00

The Spiritual Message of Literature; or, Prophetic Art

137 pp. By Kenneth S. Guthrie

A manual of the comparative religion of literature with outlines for topical study and lists of important books. Cloth, $1.00

Edward's Dream, Translated from the German of Wilhelm Busch

By Dr. Paul Carus

75 pp. Red and gold.

The delightfulness of nonsense appeals even to the philosopher. Dr. Carus has shown a fine appreciation of the humorous possibilities of a land where mathematics and geometry and even philosophy, are embodied in personalities. Edward's Dream, like Alice in Wonderland, is deliciously absurd, and at the same time, stimulating to deep thought. Cloth, $1.00

The Old and The New Magic

By Henry Ridgely Evans

450 pp. 100 illustrations. Symbolic cover design on attractive oriental red cover.

A new and enlarged edition containing many illustrations of mechanical devices with which famous magicians perform their wonderful slight-of-hand tricks and illusions. A practical hand book of mystery. Cloth, $2.00

ONE OF THE 600 STYLES OF INTERNATIONAL BIBLES

THE

"INTERNATIONAL" CHRISTIAN WORKER'S BIBLE

With All the texts on Each Great Subject Marked and Indexed in Red Ink

By Rev. JESSE LYMAN HURLBUT, D.D.

Every passage about Faith, for example, is marked with red lines and the letter F, and in the index all texts on Faith, Repentance, etc., are grouped together; so that the reader can find at once all that Jesus says about Faith, or that Isaiah or Paul says about Repentance, etc., or can rapidly follow any subject through from Genesis to Revelations. This method of marking and Indexing makes this the easiest-reading Bible. It is a Key that opens wide the Book of Books to learned and unlearned alike. It gathers all its hidden and scattered treasures, bringing to light a wealth of wisdom, power and beauty that will amaze even those who know the Bible best. It supplies new weapons and fresh power to the class leader, the teacher, the superintendent, and the lay worker, as well as the preacher and lecturer It gives new life and interest to prayer meetings, missionary, and other gatherings. It increases attendance, rouses enthusiasm, and enlists new workers for every new cause.

Prices from $3.30 to $7.50

WAGNER'S HEROES

By CONSTANCE MAUD

Profusely Illustrated in Black and White and Colors. Cloth, Octavo, Artistically Stamped in Colors. Price, 50 cents.

These stories are for our young folks and not written for Wagnerites or any other learned persons.

These are just simple tales about men and women who once really lived on the earth and about whom the greatest poet-musician wrote in that wonderful music-language of his which speaks straight to the heart.

"THE TRAVELLERS' NUMBER"
THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY

"THE Travellers' Number" of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, which has been so popular for the past two years because of its wide "personal" interest, will be issued this year under date of February 26th. Its principal object is the exploitation of Competitive Lines in the mutual interest of publisher and buyer. and our purpose is to make it of commanding importance to the trade. Several new features make it of unusual value for reference throughout the year. Through careful extra circulation it will reach practically every possible buyer of popular lines throughout the country.

Sufficient advertising support having already been pledged, there will be no increase in schedule rates. Publishers of Competitive Reprints, Copyright Rebinds, Popular Classics, Standard Sets and Series, Rag and Toy Books, Christmas Cards and Calendars, Bibles and Prayer Books, Dictionaries, Technical Hand-Books, etc., will find in "The Travellers' Number" an attractive opportunity for profitable advertising at the opening of the season of early buying.

NOTICE

A CAREFULLY Selected List of Retail Booksellers throughout the United States and Canada will be given in

The Annual American Catalog for 1909

which will be ready for delivery before the end of February

¶ This directory will include the names and addresses of all the more important dealers, with their specialties noted, as well as a list of Department Stores, with the name of the buyer of books in each. As a list of this character is valuable chiefly because selected we ask the trade to note its coming and send their early orders.

PRICE OF THE "ANNUAL AMERICAN CATALOG," INCLUDING THE DIRECTORY OF BOOKSELLERS $3.00

DUFFIELD & CO.'S JANUARY TITLES

Pierre Loti

"EGYPT"

Translated by W. P. Baines, and with eight plates in color from paintings by A. Lamplough

A wonderfully fascinating book, conveying vivid pictures of the charm of Egypt and the marvels of its antiquity. $2.50 net; postage 14c.

H. de Vere Stacpoole

"THE CRIMSON AZALEAS"

A Japanese story full of charm and color by the author of "The Blue Lagoon." The hero is an attractive young Englishman, and the heroine an exquisite Japanese mousme whom to know even between the covers of a book is to love at first sight.

Franz Blei

"THE POWDER PUFF: A Ladies' Breviary"

Translated by Lillian Coursolles Jones

A book of essays that contain "an extraordinary amount of delicate criticism. He owes something to Mr. Meredith, something to Wilde and Aubrey Beardsley, very much to French models of all periods."—The London Times. $1.25 net; postage 8c.

Fiona Macleod

"PHARAIS" and "THE MOUNTAIN LOVERS"

Collected Edition. Volume I.—The works which William Sharpe wrote under his pseudonym between the years 1894 and 1905 are here first presented in a complete edition by Mrs. Sharp, as editor, according to the wishes and instructions left with her.

Ready shortly: Volume II.—"The Sin Eater" and "The Washer of the Ford." Volume III.—"The Dominion of Dreams" and "Under the Dark Star." Volume IV.—"The Divine Adventure," "Iona," "Studies in Spiritual History."

Montrose J. Moses

"THE PASSION PLAY OF OBERAMMERGAU"

The year 1910 is the year of the Passion Play at Oberammergau. The present book gives the text of the Bavarian peasants, with an interesting introduction. $1.50 net; postage 10c.

What Happened to Father!

"The cleverest thing of the sort that has been written since 'Vice Versa' was the rage some twenty years ago," says the Philadelphia Inquirer.

The Prodigal Father

By J. STORER CLOUSTON

Author of "The Lunatic at Large"

"Did you ever think what would happen
"in a respectable, well-to-do family of prominence,
"if the father, supposedly passing into a sedate and dignified old age of semi-retirement,
"should discover the secret which Ponce de Leon sought in vain?"

Well!
"J. Heriot Walkingshaw, a successful veteran of the Edinburgh bar, with a grown-up family and a pompous elder son,
"gets hold of some sort of Metchnikoffish medicine that sets him growing steadily younger—
"and there is, naturally, the Deuce to pay.

$1.50

"Mr. Oldmeadow . . . has the artistic sense and the fitness of touch which distinguish writers like Thackeray from the common herd."—Providence Journal.

Antonio

By ERNEST OLDMEADOW

Author of "Susan"

Exquisite frontispiece in color—the girl's picture
$1.30 net; postage, 13 cents

"It is a strong, sweet, noble story,
"full of the poetry of religious reverence and human love,
"with a current of delicate humor to relieve the solemnity of the plot.
"Though rich in pathos, the book cannot be called sad.
"It is good reading in every sense—
"a tonic to both mind and heart—
"one of the best novels of the year,
"beautifully conceived and beautifully written.
"From the opening sentence of the book to the closing one,
"the exquisite picturesqueness of the story
"is its chief charm as well as predominating characteristic. . . .
"'Antonio' can safely be classed
"with the great books of the year, and
"so beautiful a book
"has not appeared in many a day."
